Introduction

1. The Freedom of Information (Scotland) Act 2002 (FOISA) requires Scottish public authorities to adopt and maintain a publication scheme. Authorities are under a legal obligation to:
 - (i) publish the classes of information that they make routinely available
 - (ii) tell the public how to access the information they publish and whether information is available free of charge or on payment.
2. FOISA also allows for the development of model publication schemes which can be adopted by more than one authority. The Commissioner’s Model Publication Scheme (the MPS) was approved on 01 November 2018.
3. The Commissioner has issued a Guide for Scottish Public Authorities to accompany the MPS. This is essential reading for authorities adopting the MPS as it explains the requirements of the scheme in detail and provides lists of types of information the Commissioner expects authorities to publish. The Guide is available via www.itspublicknowledge.info/MPS.

Definition of “published” information

4. For the purposes of this MPS, to be “published”, information must be:
 - (i) already produced and prepared and
 - (ii) available to anyone to access easily without having to make a request for it.
5. Research and information services which involve the commissioning of new information are not “publications”.

Adopting the MPS

6. It is expected that the MPS will be adopted by any authority which is subject to FOISA. For more information about which bodies this applies to, please visit www.itspublicknowledge.info/YourRights/Whocanlask.aspx
7. Adoption of the MPS commits an authority to:
 - (i) using the MPS as its publication scheme, and accepting any updates to the MPS, without amendment
 - (ii) publishing the information, including environmental information, it holds which falls within the classes of information (see below)
 - (iii) ensuring that the way it publishes its information meets the MPS Principles (see below)
 - (iv) producing a Guide to Information which sets out:
 - (a) the information the authority publishes through the MPS;

- (b) how to access it;
 - (c) whether there is a charge for it; and
 - (d) how to get help to access information
 - (v) notifying the Scottish Information Commissioner that it has adopted the MPS.
8. Where an authority fails to meet the above commitments, it cannot be considered to have adopted the Commissioner's MPS and may be failing in its duty to adopt and maintain a publication scheme in line with section 23(1) of FOISA.

Notifying the Commissioner

9. Authorities adopting the MPS for the first time must notify the Commissioner that they have done so. Thereafter, no further notification is required unless either:
- (i) the Commissioner has revoked approval (because the authority is not complying with the MPS); or
 - (ii) the authority's legal status has changed (e.g. through a merger with another authority or a legal change of name).
10. The Commissioner will regularly review the MPS and update it from time to time, notifying authorities of any changes. The Commissioner will consult authorities before making any substantive changes.
11. The Commissioner will continue to monitor authorities' compliance with the MPS. As required, the Commissioner may contact individual authorities about practice issues (see the Commissioner's Enforcement Policy).

Compliance monitoring

12. The Commissioner periodically assesses public authorities' adoption of the MPS and compliance with the publication duty. This provides valuable evidence to inform your own reviews of your authority's publication practice. Reports on the Commissioner's findings will be published at: www.itspublicknowledge.info/research.

MPS Principles

13. The following principles apply to all information published through the MPS by any authority.

Principle One: Availability and formats

14. Information published through the MPS should, wherever possible, be made available on the authority's website.
15. There must be an alternative arrangement for people who cannot reasonably access the information either online or by inspection at the authority's premises. An authority may, for example, arrange to provide information in paper copy (for which there may be a charge) or in an alternative electronic format, on request.

Principle Two: Exempt information

16. If information described by the classes of information (see below) cannot be published and is exempt under Scotland's freedom of information laws the authority may withhold the information or provide a redacted version for publication, but it must explain why it has done so.

Principle Three: Copyright and re-use

17. The authority's Guide to Information must include a copyright statement which is consistent with the fair dealing provisions of the Copyright, Designs and Patents Act 1988. Where the authority does not hold the copyright in information it publishes, this should be made clear.
18. Any conditions applied to the re-use of published information must be consistent with the Re-Use of Public Sector Information Regulations 2015.
19. The Commissioner recommends that authorities adopt the Open Government Licence and/or the non-commercial Government Licence, produced by The National Archives, for their published information.

Principle Four: Charges

20. The Guide to Information must contain a charging schedule, explaining any charges and how they will be calculated.
21. No charge may be made to view information on the authority's website or at its premises, except where there is a fee set by other legislation – e.g. for access to some registers.
22. The authority may charge for photocopying, removable storage devices, postage and packaging and other costs associated with supplying information. The charge must be no more than these elements actually cost the authority (e.g. cost per photocopy or postage). There may be no further charges for information in Classes 1 to 7 and 9 below. An exception is made for commercial publications (Class 8) where pricing may be based on market value.

Principle Five: Contact details

23. The authority must provide contact details for enquiries about any aspect of the MPS or Guide to Information.

24. FOISA requires authorities to provide reasonable advice and assistance to anyone who wants to request information. This includes information which is not published through the MPS¹. The authority's Guide to Information must provide contact details to access this help.

Principle Six: Duration

25. Once published through the Guide to Information, the information should be available for the current and previous two financial years. Where information has been updated or superseded, only the current version needs to be made available (previous versions may be requested from the authority under section 1(1) of FOISA).
26. The Guide to Information should contain a review date showing when the document was last reviewed, to show that it contains the most up to date information.
